love we put into giving.

February is Black History Month.

Haiti was the first in the world to ban slavery, declare independence, and become a black republic. Haiti has paid dearly for this place in history.

The Freedom Reparations has left Haiti with minimal resources and over years a constant of political instability. Today, gangs control the Capital of Haiti. The outlook in 2023 is unknown. There is a humanitarian food crisis. And a cholera outbreak. The gangs also control goods and gasoline. The UN has backed a humanitarian corridor for country wide transportation, but it has yet to decide how this could be accomplished. What began as a triumph in 1804 continues to instill hardship into the hearts of Haitians.

Why the name LOVE Takes Root?

The name of LOVE Takes Root was started in a small community in northwest Iowa. It embodies the belief in sustainability. Helping without hurting. Giving roots and then no matter what loving. Partnering and sharing from culture to culture to give stability to grow stronger roots. We feel blessed that the values visioned continue today. Join us on this journey.
